The venerable former home of a family who loved to entertain the artistic community of the Left Bank, the Hotel Monge has long played a significant role in the life of the Latin Quarter. Located in the heart of the fifth arrondissement of Paris, between the Jardin des Plantes and Notre Dame Cathedral, this charming 4-star 30-room hotel re-opens its doors in spring 2016, having been completely renovated. Behind an 1876 façade that is typical of the Second Empire, the Hotel Monge has embraced the benefits of the modern world while retaining the charm of the mansions of the nineteenth century, including interconnecting rooms, mouldings, Hungarian point parquet flooring, marble fireplaces, Pierre Frey velvet, exquisite furniture, and tropical-style wallpaper from Deyrolle.

Set in 5th arrondissement of Paris in the latin district, between the Jardin des Plantes and the Notre Dame Cathedral, Hotel Monge offers air-conditioned rooms and free WiFi throughout the property.

All rooms offer a flat-screen TV, a telephone and a private bathroom with free toiletries and a hairdryer.

Hotel Monge features a wellness centre with a hammam and massages available for an extra charge. There is also an honesty bar and a tea room.

You will find small shops, bars and restaurants within a 5-minute walk and the Panthéon and Sorbonne University are situated with a 15-minute walk of the property. The nearest airport is Paris - Orly Airport, 18 km from Hotel Monge.
